

Says

Thinks

The best way to predict the future is to create it. ...

the ability to come up with something new or unique.

A consultant to be worth his salt must give honest judgments not necessarily those which he thinks the clients would like to hear.

Assess your skills and strengths to choose your niche.

Analyze your market needs and pain points.

Develop your brand, website, and service offerings.

Open your business.

detecting issues and inbestigating ways to resolve them.

working with clients to understand their needs and to agree the scop of each consulting porject . conducting research ,surveys and inter views and analysing data to gain insight into the business . analysing statiscs.

the opportunity to work on really challenging business problems

The number one factor that draws students to management consultancy is the diversity of work

Does

Feels

